THE ECONOMIC VALUE OF
THE UNITED STATES MERCHANT MARINE

by Allen R. Ferguson, Eugene M. Lerner, John S. McGee, Walter Y. Oi, Leonard A. Rapping, and Stephen P. Sobotka

The book represents the final report of a major research project conducted at the Transportation Center over the past three years. Subject of the research was the question of the contribution made to the economy of the United States by the merchant marine program and fleet, exclusive of their military value. The main conclusion derived from the research -- there is no justification for the subsidization of the U.S. maritime industry on economic grounds.

A valuable reference book published in a limited edition. Copies are available by filling out and returning the form below to: The Transportation Center, PUBLICATIONS, 1804 Hinman Avenue, Evanston, Illinois.

AN IMPORTANT NEW BOOK

Published by THE TRANSPORTATION CENTER
at Northwestern University

SURVEY OF TRANSPORTATION EDUCATION in AMERICAN COLLEGES and UNIVERSITIES

The results of a comprehensive survey of transportation education program in American colleges and universities has been published in book form and is now available from the Transportation Center at Northwestern University.

Over 2,000 institutions of higher education were included in the survey. The book gives approximately 220 descriptive programs which vary from an institute or school of transportation to a single course in a department.

The survey was made specifically to help vocational guidance counselors in high schools - graduate counselors in colleges and universities - and personnel and training directors in transportation and general industries decide what and where the best transportation educational opportunities for their specific needs were.

To obtain a copy fill out and return the form below to: The Transportation Center, PUBLICATIONS, 1804 Hinman Avenue, Evanston, Illinois.
